

If the amp needs to be replaced I have been looking at a couple of options. First I would love to buy a Draconia from you and your team, since my buddy Brian Even just purchased one from you a couple of weeks ago. This is an incredible amplifier and I would love to replace my Gemini with this device. Since I am now 33 years old and I have 2 kids, my wife doesn't see this as having the same priority though. So I am looking at an ESX Q604.4 amp on Ebay

Also talking to my friend that purchased the Draconia, he stated that you were looking for some feedback on this amplifier. First and foremost I want to say this is one of the greatest amplifiers I have seen in a long time. Great to see the comeback of a high quality amplifier that Zed Audio has been able to reproduce over and over. I like the fact that this amplifier is not too complex and provides good clean power to a car audio system. The only negative feedback I would have is the size of this amplifier. This thing is huge, being an older guy that likes to have a stealth kick ass system in his everyday driver. I would like to see this be a little bit smaller. We normally have a hard enough time trying to figure out where to hide the subs, yet the amplifier as well. It is fortunate that Brian and I both have full size dodge pickups that lend themselves well to hiding this gear. Actually if you could get the size of the of the Draconia down to the size of the old Gemini it would be perfect, since I have been able to easily hide in several vehicles of the past 15 years. I realize with the physics of the cooling that is required though that it is probably impossible. Also I know that the Draconia is the smallest 4 channel amplifier that you currently make, but I think there is a large market for a bit smaller amplifier. Maybe you should consider doing a 4x50 with the same electronics as the Draconia to hit a price point for the cheap skates like myself. I know if I had the option of buying an older esx or a new amplifier built on the same electronics as the Draconia, I would buy your new amplifier hands down.

Finally, I think you have a great line of products with your new line of amplifiers. I really think you are hitting a niche in the market of car audio amplifiers that isn't there today. Where have all the good high quality American made amps gone? I really think with a little marketing and word of mouth these amps could potentially really take off. After all why would west coast customs put in a JL or Sony amp in when they could put in something a little more unique and of higher quality like a zed audio amplifier. Hell if I didn't already have a great job at GE I would be begging to be a local rep for you guys on this product. Anyways I think you guys make a great product and wish you the very best in your future ventures.

Thanks,
Todd
g Technology Services Group
